Central Facilities

Central Library

The Central Library, serving as the Learning Resource Centre (LRC), is a well-established facility with a total collection of 58,212 books, including 38,113 volumes available in the department libraries. It follows an open access system and is fully automated with KOHA (version 23.11), an open-source Integrated Library Management System that ensures efficient and seamless access for faculty and students. The library continuously enriches its resources by adding new titles across diverse disciplines each year.

In addition to its extensive book collection, the library subscribes to newspapers in both English and regional languages, as well as weekly, fortnightly, and monthly magazines and periodicals. These resources help broaden students' knowledge and keep them informed on a wide range of contemporary issues.

The library is housed in a dedicated building that comprises a central hall, a reading hall, and a stack room. It functions from 9:00 AM to 4:00 PM. A Library Advisory Committee—consisting of the Principal, the Librarian, and faculty representatives from the science and humanities departments—meets periodically to review and address library-related matters.
